OPERATOR TRAINING – ESSENTIAL FOR A SAFE WORKING ENVIRONMENT

Every year there are serious injuries and fatalities to truck operators, pedestrians and co-workers which could have been prevented if properly trained staff had followed safe systems of work.

- Nobody should operate a forklift truck, even on a very occasional basis, if they have not received the appropriate training.
- Employers are required by law to provide training and testing for all lift-truck operators they employ
- Employers are required to ensure that anyone operating workplace transport on their sites is competent and fully trained.
- UKMHA can provide employers with details of accredited training bodies
